DEDICATION

I wish to dedicate this book to Walter Henry Sturtevant (1853-1925) of Richmond, Maine (7-276). Walter, in the late 1800's and early 1900's, did extensive research on the early Sturtevant families. It was his goal (as it has been mine) to publish the records in book form. As it happens to many a dream, death stepped in and his dream was never fulfilled. Walter's hand-written notes are on file at the Maine Historical Society in Portland, Maine. His many years of work have been a valuable help in my research on the various Sturtevant families.

MY SPECIAL THANKS TO

The Maine Historical Society for granting access to the Walter H. Sturtevant Collection and permission to publish some of these materials.

Douglas W. Cruger of Portland, Maine for his research and evaluation of the Walter H. Sturtevant Collection and for other research performed.

My son Robert H. Sturtevant, Jr. (12-261) for his computer programming expertise in preparing the computer program to record the records for their subsequent publication.

The following individuals, who in the early stages of this history preparation, submitted sizable data relative to their lines of the Sturtevant family.

Percy Granville Sturtevant (10-69)
Warner Butterfield Sturtevant (10-142)
James Melvin Sturtevant (10-203)
Merle Alton Sturtevant (10-206)
Hope Sturtevant Hersom (9-659)
Elva Jeannette Sturtevant Drake (10-24)

It is the intention of this writer, or someone designated by him, to enlarge upon and continue to update, the information contained in this publication. A second edition is planned for the year 1992. For further information, contact:

The Sturtevant Line

"To one who looks down the long vista of the ages as it is revealed by the light of history, there appears from generation to generation a recurrence of the family characteristics that were strong in the family line hundreds of years before.

In the race of sturdy Sturtevants~ the same quiet energy, persistent perseverance, honest industry, self reliance, regard for the truth, belief in the ultimate triumph of right and tendency to independent thinking have prevailed in every generation."

New England Register

Sturtevant

The Sturtevant family Coat-of-Arms from Palace Hall, County Nottingham, England, (as mentioned in Burke's "General Armory") is described as follows:

ARMORIAL COAT:
Gules a lion rampant; argent on a border of the last eight pheons sable.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SYMBOLS AND COLORINGS OF THE ABOVE ARMORIAL COAT

GULES or red, denotes military fortitude and magnanimity. It is also the "Martyr's Colour".
ARGENT white or silver, signifies peace and sincerity.
SABLE or black, denotes constancy and some times but most rarely, grief.
THE LION has always held a high place in heraldry as the emblem of deathless courage.
THE BORDER or bordure, is an "ordinary". This form or bearing is of great antiquity and was frequently adopted a "difference" between relatives bearing the same arms.
THE PHEON signifies the barbed iron head of a dart, arrow, or other weapon.

There is a lot of misconception about family coats of arms. It is very easy to get one to display on your wall. You can usually get one from a number of mail order type firms and some stationery stores. The product you purchase probably will not belong to your family but most likely, will be the coat of arms for another family of the same name.

Few people are entitled to authentic coats of arms, which were originally assigned to families in Europe, usually for heroic deeds or for service to country. Traditionally, only direct descendants of these families are entitled to display them.

In that we have not traced Samuel Sturtevant (1-1) back to a specific family in Europe, we cannot legitimately claim any relationship to the Sturtevant family assigned such an honor.

TAKING LIBERTIES WITH A NAME

The biggest problem that people face in tracing their family background is trying to identify a name in a record or narrative to see if it ties into their family line. The spelling of names has been distorted for various reasons since the beginning of time and continues to be a problem in this present age. Today, people do not spell my last name correctly unless I spell it out for them.

Sturtevant, Sturdevant, Sturtivant, and Sturdivant are the four common spellings of the name, but the spelling is no indication of what "line" one descends from (as you will note in the lineal portion of this book). As a general rule, the majority of Sturtevants and Sturdivants descend from Samuel Sturtevant. The majority of Sturdevants descend from William Sturdevant that settled in Norwalk, Connecticut about the year 1676. I cannot comment on the Sturtivant spelling as time has not permitted the necessary research.

Lack of education was the probable cause of most mis-spelling. A second cause could have been that they changed the spelling to avoid the confusion of too many Samuels and Johns.

Starting with Samuel, the immigrant, aided undoubtedly by later immigrants, we find enlistments in the Revolutionary War (1775-1783), under sixty-nine various forms of spelling of the name. These are listed in volume 13, 14, and 15 of Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War - a compilation from the archives, prepared and published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The significant point is that this is a record of but one of the thirteen colonies - how many other spellings are there?

Sertevent, Stertifent, Stertvent, Stirdevent, Stirdifant, Stuartunt, Studefent, Studevint, Studivant, Sturd, Sturdavant, Sturdefans, Sturdefunt, Sturdevandt, Sturdevent, Sturdfent, Sturdifen, Sturdifont, Sturidiphen, Sturdofent, Sturt, Sturtefant, Sturtefend, Sturtefont, Sturtenvent, Sturtevant, Sturtevet, Sturtifen, Sturtivant, Sturttefen, Sturtunt, Sturtvent, Stuttefent, Stuttevent, Styrdevan, Stertevent, Stertivant, Stirdafant, Stirdfant, Stirtivunt, Stuartvant, Studevine, Studifent, Studvant, Sturdafant, Sturdavent, Sturdefent, Sturdephant, Sturdevant, Sturdefont, Sturdifant, Sturdifent, Sturdifunt, Sturdivant, Sturdyphant, Sturtavan, Sturtefen, Sturtefent, Sturtefunt, Sturtevat, Sturtevent, Sturtifant, Sturtifent, Sturtivent, Sturtuant, Sturtvant, Stutefant, Stuttevant, Sturtwent.

PREFACE

It is appropriate to say, "This is only the beginning". For years individuals have traced their family backgrounds. They have spent hundreds of hours researching and collecting data only to end up with a number of typewritten pages distributed to a few living members of their families. In the end, these recorded pages are filed away, lost, or accidentally thrown away by disinterested persons. Distant relatives and future generations reap no advantage from the original work performed.

The intention of this history is to put in published form (so as not to be lost), the work done by myself and others on the Descendants of Samuel Sturtevant. This is only the beginning but it provides a nucleus of information for others to build from.

There are no page numbers in this book. All references are by an index number assigned to an individual's name or by an indexed reference to a family name. It has the unique feature of showing each indexed individual's "lineage" back to Samuel, the immigrant ancestor of most Sturtevants in America.

In this book you will find notations such as; no data, unknown, no information available, or a blank space between parenthesis. This does not mean the information is not obtainable, it only means that time was not available to find the missing data.

I have volumes of informational data about Sturtevants (including other spellings of the name), newspaper clippings, and photos that should have been included in this publication but to include everything would have made the cost unrealistic. So I ask you to accept what I have presented here as the beginning and it is my sincere hope that it will provide the necessary assistance to you and the foundation for you to build upon.

MISCELLANEOUS

In the 14- portion of this publication is a section entitled WHO ARE MY PARENTS. In my many years of research, I have failed to find the supporting data to identify the parents of these Sturtevants. In most cases, I have a great deal of data relative to descendants from these individuals. Three paths of possibility exist:

1. Identity of their parents would tie them back to Samuel Sturtevant of Plymouth, Massachusetts.

2. Identity of their parents would reflect a change in the spelling of the name and tie them back to William Sturdevant of Norwalk, Connecticut.

3. Identity of their parents would tie them back to a later Sturtevant immigrant that came to America.

It is my sincere hope that more information can be obtained on these Sturtevants and then their descendants can be included in the Second Edition of this book planned for 1992.

INTRODUCTION

The history of the settling and growth of the Plymouth, Massachusetts area, the first permanent settlement in the United States, is a most heart warming and inspiring story. When studied in depth, it will bring tears to your eyes and tear at your heart strings. This is the one story that stands out in history as to what can be accomplished by faith, love, determination, and hard work.

The early years of the settlement (first started by the Pilgrims in late 1620) can only be described as rough ones. Insurmountable tasks had to be performed, required living on reduced rations so newcomers could be fed, there was always the Indian scares, there were problems of being ill-equipped to face the cold and the wilderness about them, and then the sadness and dispair of losing many loved ones.

There was a certain quality about these early settlers that makes it so inspiring; the faith of the people, their charity towards those who differed with them, their courage in the face of danger, their ready forgiveness of those who wronged them, and their patience under adversity. They were hard years for these early pioneers. The hours were long and the work was back-breaking, but they struggled to meet each challange or set-back as it occurred.

There is a saying, "I can neither be proud nor ashamed of my ancestors as I had nothing to do with choosing them", but I am proud of these ancestors, as you should be. I appreciate the sacrifices they made and the challanges they met. They have bequeathed to us all - a very noble heritage.

Samuel Sturtevant was one of the settlers in Plymouth, Massachusetts, coming to the "New World" about the year 1639/40. No documentation can be found relating to his birthdate, birthplace, his parentage, or who he specifically married. To build a biography on Samuel, it has necessitated piecing together certain factors (like working a giant jig-saw puzzle) and making assumptions as to what the "picture" looks like.

SAMUEL'S DATE OF BIRTH

The date of "about 1624" is the most common date found. Samuel Sturtevant was a "Townsman of Plymouth" in 1640, by the list submitted to the town meeting on May 18, 1688. In 1640, "Townsman" meant "freeman and voter"; by 1688 it had more the implication of "resident". Under the earlier terminology, this could indicate that Samuel was at least age 21 in 1640, so he could have been born as early as 1618 and that 1624 is the latest probable date.

SAMUEL'S BIRTHPLACE

Various statements have been found - none verified. Discovery of a birth or baptismal record would very likely give a clue to parentage. A query in Hartford Times, June 5, 1954, said "Nottingham, England", but no proofs cited. Holmes "Ancestral Heads", page 231, says Rochester, Kent, England, but this is not found elsewhere and evidently is unproved. Some sources say Holland.

The names of Sturtevant, Sturtivant, Sturdevant, and Sturdivant, are of English origin, and are early nicknames given to pursuivants, harbingers, or heralds. From the Middle English "Sterten" - meaning "to start" - plus the Anglo-French "ava(u)nt" - meaning "forward"..."away" signifying "start away" for a messenger. Early forms of the name are: Stryrtauant; Stircuant; Stircyuant; and Sturdyvaunte.

Writing in 1913, Walter H. Sturtevant (see Dedication) said that in the early 1600's and later there were Sturtevant families in Nottinghamshire, at Carlton and Norwell - not far from Scrooby, but that it would be pure guesswork to connect Samuel with them, lacking verifying records.

SAMUEL'S PARENTAGE

Samuel's parents may have been among the Pilgrims who fled from England to Holland. They may have remained there, or have died in one of the epidemics of 1610, 1616, etc. They may have returned to England. There are intangible indications that his parents were of good, middle class stock, possibly with family or other relationships with persons of standing in Puritan circles. The family name "John" might have some important significance. On recording the name of Samuel's first son, the name Samuel was first written, then crossed out and John interlined in the same handwriting. His sixth child was also named John.

HOW AND FROM WHERE DID SAMUEL COME

There are no proofs or leads in known records. It is an educated guess that he came, possibly from London, England in his teens, as an apprentice or indenture. Young men of good family often indentured themselves for passage costs, and apprenticeships were a normal educational procedure of the times. Samuel's known record after 1642 makes it seem unlikely that he jumped ship at Plymouth, either from one of the fishing fleet that touched there, or from one of the vessels that made this port of call. He was a yeoman, and possibly something of a small trader, but not a mariner.

SAMUEL'S WIFE

To add confusion, Samuel's wife, in various records, has been listed as Ann, Anna, and Hannah. Her identity and vital dates, except her 2nd marriage to John Bass, have never been proved. It has been generally "accepted" that Samuel married Ann Lee, daughter of Robert and Mary Lee. Robert Lee was a shoemaker at Plymouth from before January 3, 1636 until after August 6, 1662. As of October 20, 1643, he had two daughters, Ann and Mary (both mentioned that date in the will of John Atwood). John Atwood called the elder Lees "my brother and sister". Daughter Mary Lee became the wife of John Howland, Jr., of Barnstable, Massachusetts.

KNOWN FACTS ABOUT SAMUEL STURTEVANT

A court order dated May 3, 1642 settled a case over "corn in partnership" between Mr. John Jenney (Plymouth's miller), Samuel Sturtevant, and Joseph Ramsden. This order indicates that Edward Dotey, not a litigant, had agreed to pay Samuel Sturtevant 13 1/2 bushels for his part of the crop (probably harvested in 1641); that Jenney owed Dotey 5 1/2 bushels "for Thurston Clark"; and that Ramsden owed Dotey 8 bushels. Evidently Sturtevant was in debt to Jenney for the miller got 13 1/2 bushels of the corn and Dotey was "freed from any further incumbrance therein". This court record might indicate that Samuel had come over under an indenture, had planted at Dotey's man, and was to get 13 1/2 bushels of the crop as part of his termination award. The usual final settlement on an indenture at that time was a suit of clothes, 20 acres of land, and 12 bushels of corn. Dotey himself had come on the Mayflower as an indentured servant to Stephen Hopkins. About 1635 Dotey was seeking one or more indentures from London for his service.

The next year Samuel Sturtevant and Joseph Ramsden had John Jenney in court on a trespass action, 20 pounds damage. On June 6, 1643 Ramsden recovered, but apparently Sturtevant got nothing. This action would indicate that Samuel was a free man and a property owner by 1643, and also that he was born earlier than 1624 - the approximate date usually found.

Samuel was listed, at Plymouth, in August 1643, among the males between the ages of 16 and 60 able to bear arms. Under the law of the time, he was thus a member of the Plymouth Train Band and did normal military service. There is no record of his having combat duty. He was not listed in the small detachment sent from the colony to the Pequot Wars. After 1645, he was assigned to the north squadron of the Plymouth Company whose emergency assembly point was Jones River.

He helped lay out a route across Jones River to the Massachusetts Path prior to June 10, 1650; was elected one of the Surveyors for Highways of Plymouth Town on June 5, 1651; and was elected Plymouth Town Constable in 1664. He was elected as one of the jurymen in 1650, 1656, 1657/58, 1659, 1660, 1661, 1663, 1664, 1665, 1666, 1667, 1668, and 1669 (serving in court on July 6, 1669). At the Plymouth Town Meeting on May 18, 1668, he was appointed on the committee of twelve to draw up the warrant for the next town meeting to be held on February 21, 1669.

Samuel's first recorded land purchase was on July 17, 1645, when he bought from John Shaw, Jr. for L4:10:0 (payable in good Beaver before October 31, 1645), 20 acres at High Cliff, Plymouth, bounded south by lands of Samuel Cuthbertson, and north by lands of John Shaw, Sr. By October 26, 1647, he had bought other land from Kanelme Winslow, the amount and location of this yet to be determined.

On December 25, 1655, he was granted by Plymouth Town 4 acres of meadow land on the north side of a branch of Jones River. Five years later the town granted him 50 acres of land on the north side of Jones River on the southeast side of his meadow. This 50 acres he exchanged in July 1667, for 50 acres at the south end of Monponsett Pond abutting 50 acres of Mr. William Bradford's. By grant or purchase he acquired considerable other land, and in his right some grants were made to his widow after his death.

Samuel Sturtevant's dwelling and homelot was at High Cliff (North Plymouth), presumably the 20 acres bought in 1645. This was later occupied by his son John, to whom his other sons sold their rights in this homestead on April 25, 1693.

SUMMARY

The following exerpt from a history written by Claire Sturtevant Booth (10-11) best describes Samuel and his wife Ann.

"The whole of Samuel's Colony life of about twenty-eight years was an active one of founding a home, providing for the needs of his family, extending his lands, farming and serving the community in minor capacities. It is surprising that Samuel found time to serve the community in any way considering the demands made upon his time and strength through the support of his family. In view of this fact, it is evident he was very ambitious and energetic, and possessed of considerable strength and courage. While to none of his public offices can be ascribed any particular greatness, still, each does signify a certain amount of stability and dependability. Had Samuel not been of proven value to the community he would not have been selected by the Governors and their Assistants for the positions to which he was assigned. Such men of strength as William Bradford, Miles Standish, Edward Winslow, Thomas Prince, William Collyer, and Edmond Freeman were active in administering the internal affairs of the Colony and their exemplary conduct to a great measure, influenced Samuel's life through his association with them. As the years passed over the Colony and Samuel gained the experience of age, he became a respected member of the community and a man of moral worth in the estimation of his associates.

Whoever Ann may have been before her marriage, she proved to be a good wife and mother. Perhaps Samuel was growing as a man of worth in his community before their marriage but it was not until 1647 that his name begins to appear conspicuously in Plymouth records. Ann was undoubtedly a women of intelligence and sensing the force of Samuel's character, in a way, assisted in directing his perseverance and tenacity of purpose into fields of greater prominence. Samuel did not become a great man in the Colony but he accomplished a great deal in the way of assisting to stabilize the life of the community through his industry and moral conduct. It may readily be taken for granted that unless Ann had been a woman of character, of good family connection, and a real counselor that Samuel would never have progressed to a great degree. The fact that her boys grew to be rugged and stout hearted men would still further prove the value of her character and morals. Another indication is that her girls married into good families, the Little's and the Waterman's."

Joseph Kimball Sturtevant (7-412) came to the northern part of the Oregon Territory, took a land claim and was raising horses for the Calvery at Fort Walla Walla. The Indians were unfriendly and after a skirmish, Joseph was left for dead on the battlefield. Someone found him, extracted the bullet, and nursed him back to health. By the time he was ready to begin his life anew, his land was forfeited so he came south, arriving in Lane County, Oregon in 1854. Here he bought land and later married in 1861/62. His wife died soon after the birth of their first child and the child died soon thereafter. When the Civil War started, he went back east to join the Confederate forces but was turned down because of old bullet wounds.

In 1865, he returned to Oregon with his sister, Mary Jane Sturtevant (7-414) and her husband Sidney Sylvester Stephens. They did not cross the plains but came across the Isthmus of Panama by "Shank's Mare" and mule team to the Pacific side. Here they caught the ship Golden Rule for their passage north. On the way to Seattle, Joseph met and married Mary Elizabeth Peirce, a young orphan, with the ship's captain performing the ceremony. They came to the Crow, Oregon area where Joseph already had his holdings.

Charles Whitmore Sturtevant (7-445) enlisted on May 5, 1862 as a Private in Company D, Forty-fourth Regiment, Infantry, Massachusetts Volunteers, and served until discharged in February 1863. Re-enlisted in Company L, First Regiment, Cavalry, Massachusetts Volunteers, in which he was promoted to 1st Lieutenant, and was discharged in July 1864. When 19 years of age, he left Boston and went to Cuba; was in the Consular service three years, serving as United States Consul at Havana, at the time of the "Virginia" troubles, in the early 1870's. In 1873, with his wife and 1st child, he went from Cuba to California, was a Professor of Spanish language in a college at San Francisco, a correspondent for Spanish newspapers, and interpreter for a number of the larger commercial firms in San Francisco.

Francis Davis Sturtevant (7-775) enlisted at Morristown, New Jersey in April 1861, for 3 years as a Private in Company B, Second Regiment Infantry, New Jersey Volunteers. Served in the Sixth Corps, Army of the Potomac, and participated in the battles of First Bull Run, Brick Church, Fair Oaks, Hanover Court House, White Oak Swamp, and Malvern Hill. Francis was discharged for disability, after the Peninsula Campaign, on November 28, 1862 at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He re-enlisted at Newark, New Jersey on September 1, 1864 for one year, as First Sergeant, Company K, Thirty-ninth Regiment Infantry, New Jersey Volunteers, and served in the First Brigade, Second Division, Ninth Corps, Army of the Potomac. He was engaged in the battles of Hatcher's Run, South Side Railroad, and Petersburg. He was discharged at the close of the Civil War.

Edward Lewis Sturtevant (7-28), farmer, botanist, physician, and author, was one of the giants of his time in the science of agriculture. Through natural endowment, industry and rare mental attainments, he accomplished more than most men in scientific research by his own efforts. But, possibly, he achieved even more through his influence on his fellow-workmen than by his own endeavors. Rare, indeed, are the men in any field of attainment who have furnished so freely as he from an inexhaustible store of information unfailing aid and inspiration to those who worked with him. The happy combination of these two qualities, work and ability to help others work, led Sturtevant to success significant enough to make him one of the honor men of agriculture in the United States.

STURTEVANT, WISCONSIN

Rumors and beliefs get started by various ways and my original belief as to how Sturtevant, Wisconsin was named is such an example. When I was about 10 years of age, my grandfather Charles Granville Sturtevant (9-59) told me that he was responsible for naming the town. He worked for the Soo Line Railroad and in that the Soo Line (he stated) had maintenance shops there, he named the town Sturtevant, Wisconsin. It was not until I started to work on this Sturtevant history that I found out the truth in its naming.

The following is an excerpt from information prepared by the Village of Sturtevant, Wisconsin.

Racine County was set off from Milwaukee County in 1836. It was four times it's present size. In 1839, half of it went to Walworth County and in 1850, half again went to Kenosha County.

In 1874, Mr. S. Parker platted 25 acres of land lying adjacent to the depot. He put the plat on the market, readily disposing of several lots. He then called this PARKERSVILLE.

The Racine and Mississippi Railroad was built in 1875 and ran as far as Beloit. Shortly after that, the depot and other railroad buildings were erected. The name was then changed from PARKERSVILLE to WESTERN UNION JUNCTION.

On February 17, 1876, the Chicago-Milwaukee Railroad was completed. This line connected Chicago and Milwaukee, going through WESTERN UNION JUNCTION.

On August 13, 1901, the name of the village was changed to CORLISS. The Brown Corliss Engine Company of Milwaukee erected a large building and manufactured some of the largest steam engines in the United States.

On July 20, 1907 the recession set in, causing a great deal of confusion and the result was the filing of bankruptcy by the Brown-Corliss Engine Company. One of the reasons for this was the experimentation with the gasoline engine and the inevitable fact that the steam engine would be replaced by the gasoline engine.

The B. F. Sturtevant Company (see 7-154) of Boston, Massachusetts bought the Brown-Corliss Engine Company in 1923 and on October 2, 1923, the name of the village was changed from CORLISS to STURTEVANT.

IN JANUARY 1917 SCENE AT PENSACOLA ARE THREE STURTEVANTS, A GALLAUDET AND N-9'S IN BACKGROUND

THE STURTEVANT AEROPLANE

The B. F. Sturtevant Company (now a Division of the Westinghouse Corporation) had its beginning by Benjamin Franklin Sturtevant (7-154). Its reputation as a manufacturer of high class machinery resulted in many accomplishments (see other write-ups on STURTEVANT, WISCONSIN and the STURTEVANT CAR). One such accomplishment was the STURTEVANT AEROPLANE built during the years 1915-1917. The aeroplane was built in two different models (one for the U. S. Army and one for the U. S. Navy). Built under the manufacturers name of the Sturtevant Aeroplane Company of Boston, Massachusetts, its all-steel frame was something way ahead of the times. Most aircraft at that time were being built with wood frames and some metal support.

The aircraft was a two-seat design, powered by an engine (rated at 140 horsepower at 2000 RPM) which was also manufactured by the B. F. Sturtevant Company. During World War I, the aircraft was intended primarily for the observation and training role and appears to have served the training role at Pensacola.

I have never been able to determine how many, if any, were ordered by the U. S. Army - but only twelve (12) were procured by the U. S. Navy. After this (because of the standardization of designs brought about by World War I), the Sturtevant Aeroplane Company shifted its production to aircraft components for other aircraft manufacturers.

My thanks to the Naval Historical Center in Washington, D. C. for their assistance in my research on the Sturtevant Aeroplane. Photos are from the National Archives.

THE STURTEVANT CAR

It was about 1950 when I came across an item in Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not" column which stated AMERICA'S FIRST CAR WITH AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION - - in 1904, was the STURTEVANT car. I had never heard of this car so I began to research this item and this is what I found out.

The Sturtevant Mill Company, Harrison Square, Boston, Massachusetts, well known manufacturers of high class machinery, produced the cars between 1904 and 1908. The engine speed and the speed of the car was automatically controlled through automatic clutches.

Design of the transmission and clutch devises were made by Thomas Leggett Sturtevant (7-248) and Thomas Joseph Sturtevant, and they held the following patents on their designs.

829,128	806,377	766,552	675,425	834,499
834,592	784,285	766,551	865,449	794,899

The appearance of the Sturtevant car (as shown in the above sketch) had a six-cylinder horizontal opposed 40 horsepower engine. It had a glass front dash in which, protected from the elements, were located the governor, carburetor, coil and vibrator, gasoline and water gauges, etc., all directly under the eye of the operator.

The Sturtevant car was only in production for a short time, and with its disappearance its automatic transmission passed from the scene. One objection to this transmission was that it had only two forward speeds. That, of course, could have been remedied, but the more serious deficiency was that there was no overlapping of the speed ranges of the low and high gears; that is to say, up to a certain predetermined engine speed the car could only be driven in low gear, while above that speed it could only be driven in high gear. Considerable trouble was experienced from overheating of the high-speed clutch due to excessive slippage. As soon as a certain moderate speed was reached, the high speed clutch would engage automatically - but throwing the car into high gear would slow down the engine and there was then a tendency for the clutch to disengage again. Hence if the driver was not careful to get out of this change-over zone quickly, the clutch would slip continuously.

My thanks to the Warner Gear Division of the Borg-Warner Corporation for their assistance in my research of the Sturtevant car.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN JOE

Joseph Bevier Sturtevant (7-679), known around Boulder, Colorado, as "Rocky Mountain Joe", was born in Boston, Massachusetts, on February 8, 1851. He had an adventurous career from boyhood until the time of his death. Most of his early days were spent among Indians and those who fought the red men. When he was a young boy his father moved the family to Wisconsin where he became an Indian trader. Young Joseph lived among the Indians and adopted many of their ways, learning to shoot a rifle and becoming an expert horseman. He later was apprenticed as a broom-maker and was supposed to remain as an apprentice until he was twenty-one years of age, but Dan Costello's circus came through the country, and the "Big Top" with its animals, performers, and travel had such an appeal to young, romantic Joseph B. Sturtevant, that he left the drab life of broom making and joined the circus.

He remained with Dan Costello until the outbreak of the Civil War. The circus was in Cairo, Illinois, when the 4th Wisconsin Cavalry arrived, and the excitement of military life appealed to Joseph stronger than the circus. He enlisted in the 4th Wisconsin Cavalry, and saw action in Mobile, Alabama, and in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

When Indian trouble broke out on the Western frontier, Joseph made his way north and on September 3, 1863, joined General Sully's command. He participated in the battle of White Stone Hill, which dealt a severe blow to the Sioux.

His next big Indian fight took place on August 2, 1867, under Major James Powell. Thirty-one men, including Sturtevant, held off nearly three thousand Indians for a short time. Later, Joseph, with one of his companions, was captured. They were staked to the ground to be burned by their captors, but both of them escaped during a heavy rain storm and returned to their command.

Sturtevant was given the task of carrying mail from Fort Stevenson on the Missouri River to Fort Totten, Dakota Territory, and in July 1868, was captured by a band of Sioux Indians under the leadership of the great Chief Sitting Bull. He remained their prisoner for nearly two years. In 1870, he and another companion escaped by floating down the Missouri River from the site of Fort Berthold to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

In 1873, he returned to Dakota Territory, where he joined the forces of General Custer as a scout. He was later transferred to Colonel Cook as an Indian scout.

The Rocky Mountains lured Joe, and he arrived in Boulder, Colorado, about 1874. He immediately liked the region and opened a paper hanging and decorating business. The picturesque garb of a trapper, with long hair hanging over his shoulders, gave Sturtevant the appearance of a true frontiersman, and it was not long before he was known as "Rocky Mountain Joe".

In 1874, he met Anna Lyckman and they were married two years later.

The above is an excerpt from "Rocky Mountain Joe" by Nolie Mumey. Photo credit goes to the Boulder Historical Society.

Charles Henry Sturtevant (8-81) started school at four years of age and was taught by a minister. His reader was the Old Testament. His mother died when he was eight years old. He then quit school and stayed home, keeping house and caring for an invalid sister. When his father married again, he left home and went to work on a farm owned by a sea captain named Captain Cobb. He ran Cobb's farm until he was about sixteen years old and then went fishing for two seasons off the Grand Banks. He then learned the tack-makers trade but when he was about twenty-one, his father was injured by a falling tree so he returned home, ran the farm with the help of a hired man and took care of his father in addition to his regular tack-making work. He married when he was twenty-two years old and he and his wife lived at his father's home until he enlisted under Captain C. C. Bumpus, Company E, 32nd Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers. On January 21, 1862, he was wounded by a bayonet in the knee and was discharged at Fort Monroe, February 12, 1863, by order of Major General Dix.

He returned home, moved to Dighton and worked for David Cushman in his tack shop. While there, he lost the sight of his left eye when making repairs to a tack machine.

In July 1871, with his wife and four sons, he left for the West. They came by rail to Buffalo and then to Duluth, Minnesota by boat. The present site of Duluth was for sale at that time for $60. From Duluth, they went to Crow Wing by rail. This was the western end of the railroad. Here they joined up with other land seekers and formed a group totaling seven teams. They arrived in Detroit City, Minnesota (later changed to Detroit Lakes, Minnesota) the latter part of August. They stayed at the Tyler Hotel three days and it cost them $66. A two room log house was built and they moved into it in October of 1871. His step-mother having died, he returned to Massachusetts and brought his father to Minnesota with him in March of 1872.

In 1880, he decided to return to his old home, so he and his wife, sons William Wallace and George Henry, and daughter Olive Sherman left Detroit Lakes on March 28th, and returned to Massachusetts by way of Montreal. He went to work again for David Cushman as head tacker until 1883 when the business was sold. In April of 1885, he and his family returned to Grafton, North Dakota, where they lived with Ebenezer Soule Sturtevant until August of 1887, when he moved back to Detroit Lakes, Minnesota.

Charles Henry Sturtevant did odd jobs around Detroit Lakes, keeping the plank sidewalks in repair and doing small carpentry jobs. He broke his leg in 1904 and he walked with a limp thereafter. He was very quick tempered and had strong likes and dislikes. He minded his own business and expected others to mind theirs. He was called "Ugly Face" by the Indians and they kept clear of him, but he could keep house as well as a woman and was a good nurse.

Charles Granville Sturtevant (9-59) was born in Plympton, Massachusetts and when he was 10 years old, he came to Detroit Lakes, Minnesota with his parents. The opportunities for schooling in this new area were very limited, but he picked up, through various types of work he engaged in, a good stock of information, especially relating to land values, surveying, and accounting.

He started out as an Assistant Surveyor in 1875, at the age of 14. He surveyed and laid out the present road between Detroit Lakes, Minnesota and Ponsford, Minnesota in 1880. He was land examiner for the Northern Pacific Railroad in 1880 and for the Canadian Pacific Railroad in a similar capacity in 1881-1882. He was twice elected county surveyor of Becker County, Minnesota, in 1883-1889 and 1891-1893. He was assessor of Beltrami County, Minnesota during 1884-1889. He served the town of Detroit Lakes, Minnesota at various times as Recorder, City Assessor, Board of Health, and was City Clerk during 1903-1910. He then resigned to accept a position as Land and Tax Commissioner with the Soo Railroad, which he held until he was retired in January of 1932. While with the Soo Railroad he lived in Minneapolis, Minnesota, but upon being retired, he moved back among his old friends at Detroit Lakes, Minnesota.

Charles Granville Sturtevant was a man of a quiet disposition, but very conscientious in the discharge of any responsibility which he assumed, and because of this was highly respected and had the confidence of every person fortunate enough to enjoy his acquaintance. He had done much in advancing a high standard of public service and of devotion to his individual and civic responsibilities.

OLD COLONY MEMORIAL,

EXTRA.

PLYMOUTH, MASS., MAY 7, 1875. Price Three Cents.

EXECUTION

THE HALIFAX MURDERER.

THE PRELIMINARIES!

months ago finds a fitting and consonant finish in the execution of the extreme sentence of the law, upon the person of the chief actor in it, and the soul of the murderer has been sent to meet his victims, in the world which is thought to right the wrongs of this.

The details of the crimes of William E. Sturtivant, the Halifax murderer, and the circumstances which attended and followed them, have been given to the public in our columns as they occurred: but as we issue an extra sheet to-day for the especial purpose of presenting the closing scene of this melancholy business, a summary of the events and incidents in its history may serve to make the record more complete, and call to mind points which perhaps are half forgotten by this time; and it will certainly serve to show the regular steps over which the perpetrator of such a crime must irresistibly pass, from its commission to its punishment.

DETAILS OF THE CRIME.

On Sunday evening, February 15th, 1874, William E. Sturtivant left his home at Keene's Corner, Hanson, and started on foot and alone for the residence of his great-uncles, Thomas and Simeon Sturtevant, in the neighboring town of Halifax. The distance between the two points was between four and five miles. It was no labor of love which prompted that journey in the darkness, on a disagreeable winter night. No considerations of exercise or recreation could have induced it, for he had already walked nearly nine miles that day, these evidences, and many others, point directly to but one man in the whole world as he who did the deed; the motive, the opportunity, the result, are all apparent, and William E. Sturtivant is the man who holds the fatal end of this terrible chain.

THE GENERAL BELIEF.

So thought the Trial Justice before whom he was first arraigned, on the Wednesday following his Sunday walk; so thought the jury summoned by coroner Kingman; so thought the Grand Jury, at Plymouth Court House, on May 8th following. So thought, as we shall see, the jury assembled to pass upon his guilt at the sitting of the Supreme Court, in June and July following; and such has been the unwavering, inevitable conviction of every one familiar with the developments of the case since its inception.

THE REASON WHY.

Wm. E. Sturtivant was young, unscrupulous, and poor, conditions out of which crime has frequently arisen. That he was unscrupulous is proved by the fact that he had allowed himself to steal, and had already suffered repeated punishment for that offence. There was no doubt of his poverty. The Sturtevant brothers, in Halifax, were comparatively rich; peculiar in their ways; distrusting their fellow men, and not particularly well loved or even respected by those who knew them. Their earnings and savings they kept by them, preferring to be the guardians of their own treasures, and satisfied of their ability to hold what they had attained. The nature factorily account for; his failure to establish the fact that he was at home throughout the night of the murder, or at some place other than the Sturtevant dwelling; his failure to account for sums of money in his possession, and his evident desire to conceal them from all knowledge; the fact that the circumstances indicated no one else as the possible murderer, even in the slightest degree; and that all pointed to him in the strongest manner." The defence was little more than a general denial.

The trial lasted five days, commencing on Monday, June 29th. The case was given to the jury at 5.30 o'clock on the following Friday afternoon. At 7.35, the same evening, they returned to the Court room, and announced as their verdict that the prisoner was "guilty of murder in the first degree."

CONTINUATION OF THE CASE.

Exceptions to the rulings of the Court during the trial were taken by the defendant's counsel, which were duly filed, and argued in chambers in Boston. They were overruled, and on the 25th of January last, at a special session of the Court appointed for the purpose, sentence of death was passed upon the criminal, and, as by the terms of the sentence, he was taken back to the prison, there to await the final execution of the decree.

IN HIS CELL.

The cell in which Sturtivant has been confined in one of three in a small room on the main floor of the House of Correction.

LAST HOURS OF THE PRISONER.

The Last Act!

INCIDENTS, etc.!

More than a year has passed since on a certain winter morning our communities were startled by the intelligence that, in one of the most retired of our County villages, during the peaceful quiet of a Sabbath evening, one of the foulest and most unnatural murders that ever stained the criminal annals of any locality, had been perpetrated. Three aged persons, the inmates of the same home, whose lives had been passed in plodding industry, and whose history was as uneventful as human experience can be, were suddenly involved in as dark a tragedy as the mind of man can conceive, and in the midst of it hurried out of existence. The details flew from lip to lip; hardly had the unseen fiendish actor finished his bloody work, before the avenger, with the unerring instincts always bestowed on such occasions, was on his track; step by step investigation was pursued, probability was succeeded by suspicion, and suspicion deepened into positive certainty, as all the attending circumstances were scrutinized and probed and searchingly examined, by skilful men, who were after the secret which a "guilty man can nowhere bestow, and say it is safe." To-day, the tragedy begun at Halifax nearly fifteen to make a call upon relatives in East Bridgewater. Shortly after leaving his own residence, on the evening in question, he possesses himself of a newly formed stake, from a cart on the premises of a neighbor, which he can use as a walking stick to assist his journey, or as a cudgel for offensive or defensive purposes. He is young and in health; his movements are rapid, and he soon reaches the house. His trip has been made in silence and utter loneliness. Much of the distance lies through woods, and he has met no troublesome fellow travellers on the road. He reaches the house of his relatives, enters, performs his errand, and returns as he has come.

No eye had seen him, coming or going; there was no human witness of his proceedings within or without the house at Halifax; and yet the marks of his presence and his mission are as clearly to be read as though his journey had been performed in open daylight, and his crimes publicly committed.

THE MURDER DISCOVERED.

The next morning the three aged occupants of that house were found cruelly murdered, their heads pounded to a jelly.—Thomas and Simeon, the two brothers, within the house that should have sheltered them, and Miss Mary Buckley, the housekeeper, outside, though almost within its very shadow. The news flies with lightning rapidity; friends and neighbors assemble from near and far; the inquisitive officers of the law—whose business it is to bring dark things to the light, and uncover hidden secrets—search up and down for a clue which they may follow, till it leads them to the murderer. In a surprisingly short time they have found it, and the deed committed without human witnesses becomes more clearly apparent, from the very peculiarity of the circumstances attending it; and the bloody cart-stake, the unique currency, the bank-bills, the foot-prints in the earth, tell a tale which no cross-examination can cause to waver, and no ingenuity turn to false purposes. All property, were favorable to robbery, if a desperate man undertook the enterprise. All these facts William E. Sturtivant well knew; and he had the hardihood, the ability, and the courage to run the necessary hazards to obtain a portion of this wealth. He did so. Whether the triple murder was the result of an emergency that arose in consummating his purpose, or was a part of his original plan, has never yet been clearly disclosed.

WHAT HE GAINED.

In the house of the Sturgeants, on that fatal Sunday evening, was a quantity of money which would have made the wretched murderer rich—in his own estimation—had he possessed himself of it. Instead of carrying off thousands of dollars, he took only hundreds; and the disposition he made of what he did take, was such as would hardly do justice to the intellect of a child. All the facts enumerated above were brought out at his trial, during which it was conclusively shown that he had freely used those three agents which are always employed to cover crime,—concealment, fraud and falsehood.

THE TRIAL.

His trial commenced at Plymouth on the 29th of June last. The Court had previously assigned to defend the prisoner, Hon. J. B. Harris, and Jesse E. Keith, Esq., prominent members of the Plymouth County Bar. The first named of these gentlemen, who distinguished himself for the assiduity and ability with which he conducted this case, was called some months since to the final laying down of his labors in this world.

The government relied, to prove the guilt of the prisoner, upon the following points:—his extreme poverty on the night preceding the murder, and his possession of ample funds on the day following the crime; the finding in his possession of a quantity of scrip corresponding exactly with that left behind at the Sturtevant house, on the night the crime was committed; his clothing freely stained with blood, which he could not satisprisoners, in one of the [illegible] above, Mrs. Gardner, the poisoner, spent many years of her incarceration, and here, also, the Kingston murderer, Deacon Samuel Andrews, was confined previous to his removal to the State Prison at Charlestown. Sturtivant, up to Tuesday morning last, has occupied the second or middle of these three cells. At that time he was taken out and removed to the one adjoining.

HIS PRISON LIFE.

The prisoner has always appeared to act upon the theory that Government could not possibly hang him on the evidence presented at his trial. He has never, until recently been positive in his denial of guilt, but has appeared to shield himself behind, and base strong hopes upon, the fact that he was the victim of circumstances which alone pointed towards him as a criminal. How much of effect he has designed in assuming the character and practices of a man with a clear conscience, in whose behalf the eternal principles of right would finally prevail, can only be judged by an analysis of his whole life. He has never been a whining or grumbling prisoner, and has given little trouble to his keepers, aside from the active watchfulness which his known traits and energetic ingenuity made necessary. He has been neither sullen or morose; nor, on the contrary, has he shown habitual levity or barbarous recklessness. Always lively, ready to converse or be occupied, employing his mind and body to the full extent allowed under his circumstances, he has shown little of that dreamy pre-occupation or absent wandering of mind and thought, popularly supposed to be the peculiarity of those annoyed by remorseful feelings or haunted by terrible memories. If he is utterly hardened, he exhibits none of that coarseness in it which makes such a state so fearfully repulsive, and he certainly has never satisfied the ideal which a visitor might have formed of the personal appearance of a bloody murderer.

The USS Destroyer STURTEVANT (DD-240) and the USS Destroyer Escort STURTEVANT (DE-239) were named in honor of Albert Dillon Sturtevant (10-220). On March 24, 1917, Sturtevant and 28 others enlisted in the Naval Reserve Forces as the First Yale Unit. Two days later, they were all commissioned ensigns. After flight training in Florida, Sturtevant was designated a naval aviator on May 1, 1917 and, in September, he received orders for overseas duty. Ensign Sturtevant reported to the group attached to the Royal Flying Corps station at Felixstowe, England, in October.

Sturtevant's duties consisted of flying escort for merchantmen crossing the North Sea. On February 15, 1918, while flying an escort mission with another plane of his unit, the two Americans were jumped by a flight of 10 German planes. Sturtevant's companion recognized the hopelessness of the 5-to-1 odds and escaped to safety, but Sturtevant gamely fought it out with the enemy. When last seen, Ensign Sturtevant was hit and crippled, falling toward the sea. For his heroic actions, he was awarded the Navy Cross posthumously.

My thanks to the Naval Historical Center in Washington, D. C. for their assistance in my research.

The following write-up is from the Dictionary of American Naval Fighting Ships (Volume VI).

The first Sturtevant (DD-240) was laid down on 23 November 1918 at Camden, N.J., by the New York Shipbuilding Co.; launched on 29 July 1920; sponsored by Mrs. Curtis Ripley Smith; and commissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard on 21 September 1920. Lt. Comdr. Ewart G. Haas assumed command of Sturtevant on 4 November 1920.

In early November of 1920, Sturtevant sailed to Newport, R.I., and thence proceeded to New York City. On 30 November, she departed New York to join the United States Naval Forces, European Waters. She reached Gibraltar on 10 December and, after four days, continued on to the Adriatic Sea. On the 19th, she arrived at her new base, Spalato, on the Dalmatian coast. For the next six months, she conducted various missions from Spalato to the ports on the Adriatic littoral.

On 16 June 1921, the destroyer was reassigned from the Adriatic detachment to the Constantinople detachment and, three days later, commenced docking and overhaul at Constantinople. During this assignment, Sturtevant conducted drills in the Sea of Marmara, between the twin straits, the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus, and operated in the Black Sea. She visited Samsun, Turkey; Burgas, Bulgaria; and Sulina and Braila on the Rumanian coast. From 25 October to 28 November, she flew the flag of Admiral Bristol. Following this duty, the ship visited the ports of Beirut and Joffa and then Alexandria, Egypt, and the Isle of Rhodes. In late December, she returned to Turkey at Samsun, thence to Constantinople in January 1922, before reentering the Black Sea to visit southern Russia.

Between 1921 and 1923, the Russian Civil War and a drought brought a great famine to Russia, particularly to the usually food-rich Volga region of southern Russia. America responded with nearly a million short tons of food which the Bolsheviks accepted grudgingly and often as surreptitiously as possible. Sturtevant investigated potential ports of debarkation in southern Russia for the supplies soon to be shipped by the American Relief Administration. To this end, she visited Odessa, Sevastopol, Novorossisk, Theodosia, and Yalta between early February and mid-April. Thereafter, through the end of the year, she made voyages across the Black Sea to various Russian ports in conjunction with the relief operation. She stopped at numerous other foreign ports on the voyages, including Samsun, Trebizond, and Mudania, Turkey. From July to October, she made a round-trip voyage back to the United States, during which she was overhauled at the New York Navy Yard and exercised out of Yorktown, Va.

On 1 October, Sturtevant was ordered back to the eastern Mediterranean and, the following day, got underway for Gibraltar. She arrived there on the 14th and continued on to Turkey, reaching Mudania on the 27th. For the next seven months, the destroyer visited the ports of the eastern Mediterrean and those along the coast of the Black Sea. In addition to ports of call of the previous cruises, she visited Varna, Bulgaria; Mersina and Smyrna, Turkey; Piraeus, Greece; and Naples, Italy. From the latter port, she sailed for Gibraltar in late May of 1923 and, by 12 June, was back at the Navy Yard in New York. She operated along the Atlantic seaboard through the end of the year, conducting gunnery exercises in October at the southern drill grounds off Virginia. In November, the ship paid an Armistice Day visit to Baltimore, Md. Three days before the end of the year, Sturtevant became flagship of Division 41, Squadron 14, Scouting Fleet.

In early January, Sturtevant proceeded to the Canal Zone to participate in a war problem with the Scouting Fleet. At the end of the month, she sailed with the Fleet, via Culebra Island, to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and the British West Indies, conducting tactical exercises along the way. In May, the destroyer returned north and operated along the east coast for the remainder of the year. In January 1925, Sturtevant again headed south. After a month and one-half of operations in the Caribbean, she transited the Panama Canal and entered the Pacific. She visited San Diego and San Francisco in California in April before getting underway for the Hawaiian Islands. From late April to mid-June, the ship participated in a joint Army-Navy war problem simulating the attempt of an enemy force to capture the island of Oahu. On 11 June, she set a course for San Diego and arrived on the 17th.

The destroyer started on her return voyage to the Atlantic on the 22d and reached New York City on 16 July. She cruised the Atlantic coast until mid-October and then proceeded south for winter maneuvers out of Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Transiting the Panama Canal in late January 1926, she participated in fleet exercises on the Pacific side. Returning to the Atlantic side of the isthmus to resume drills and exercises in the vicinity of Cuba, Sturtevant steamed north to Boston during the first week in May.

Between May 1926 and January 1931, Sturtevant continued to operate with the Atlantic Fleet in Destroyer Division 41, Destroyer Squadron 14. Each year summer operations along the north and central Atlantic coast of the United States were alternated with winter maneuvers in the warm waters of the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. During the fall of 1930, she was assigned Charleston, S.C., as her home port, but was ordered north again in January of 1931 for decommissioning. On 30 January 1931, Sturtevant was placed out of commission at Philadelphia, Pa.

She was recommissioned there on 9 March 1932 and, on 30 April, reported for duty to the Commander, Special Service Squadron, at Coco Solo in the Canal Zone. For the next two years, the destroyer plied the warm and troubled waters of the Gulf and the Caribbean, supporting the activities of the marines ashore in Nicaragua, Haiti, Cuba, and other Latin American republics. Early in 1934, she left the Special Service Squadron to rejoin the destroyers of the Scouting Force. During this tour of duty, she was homeported at Norfolk, Va.

In the latter half of 1935, the ship was reassigned to the Battle Force, located in the Pacific. After operating out of San Diego until 20 November, she was decommissioned once again.

On 26 September 1939, Sturtevant was recommissioned once more. By mid-1940, she was back in the Atlantic escorting convoys and conducting neutrality patrols along the eastern seaboard. The destroyer operated out of Norfolk, Va., in the North Atlantic until early March 1942, then escorted a convoy from New York to the Canal Zone. There she reported for duty to the Commander, Caribbean Sea Frontier, screening convoys between the various ports of the Caribbean until late April.

On 26 April, she departed Key West in company with a convoy. Just over two hours out of port, a violent explosion lifted Sturtevant's stern from the water, but caused no apparent damage. Thinking herself under submarine attack, the destroyer dropped two depth charge barrages. About a minute after she dropped the second barrage of charges, a second detonation rocked the ship. She began to settle rapidly, but on an even keel. Minutes later, a third burst ripped her keel apart beneath the after deckhouse. The midships section sank immediately, and the stern settled soon thereafter. The bow curiously remained above water for several hours. Finally, however, all but the crow's nest disappeared beneath the waves. Probably the victim of a mine, Sturtevant went down off Key West about eight miles north of Marquesas Key. Fifteen of her ship's company joined her in the watery grave. Her name was struck from the Navy list on 8 May 1942.

The second Sturtevant (DE–239), a destroyer escort, was laid down on 15 July 1942 by the Brown Shipbuilding Co., at Houston, Tex.; launched on 3 December 1942; sponsored by Mrs. William North Sturtevant; and commissioned on 16 June 1943, Lt. Comdr. Frederick W. Hawes in command.

After shakedown in the vicinity of Bermuda and training off the Rhode Island coast, Sturtevant began 21 months of convoy escort duty in the Atlantic. On 24 September, she got underway to screen her first convoy to Casablanca and Gibraltar. After two more such Atlantic crossings, she was assigned to Londonderry-bound convoys and made five voyages to that Irish port. Sturtevant rounded out her Atlantic service with two convoys each to Liverpool, England, and Cardiff, Wales, and one to Southampton, England. Between crossings, the destroyer escort was repaired and overhauled at the New York Navy Yard and trained at Casco Bay, Maine, and at Montauk Point, Long Island. In all, Sturtevant made 13 successful round-trip voyages across the Atlantic and back.

On 9 June 1945, she entered the New York Navy Yard for post-voyage availability. Sturtevant emerged from the yard 38 days later with her antiaircraft defenses strengthened considerably. En route to Pearl Harbor, she trained for 14 days in the Guantanamo area and stopped briefly at San Diego. By the time Sturtevant arrived in Hawaiian waters, the war was over. No longer needed in the Pacific, the destroyer escort was ordered back to the Atlantic Fleet, carrying passengers to San Pedro on the first leg and reaching Charleston, S.C., on 25 September. There she started preparations for decommissioning and inactivation with the Atlantic Reserve Fleet. In October, she shifted to the inactive fleet berthing area at Green Cove Springs, Fla., where she was decommissioned on 24 March 1946.

After six years of inactivity in Florida, Sturtevant was recommissioned on 3 August 1951, Comdr. R. B. Redmayne in command. For the next four years, she operated along the Atlantic coast of the United States and in the Caribbean Sea. Her operations carried her as far north as the coast of Labrador and as far south as Cuba. Much of the time she spent in the Caribbean was devoted to work in conjunction with the Fleet Sonar School at Key West, Fla., and with the Hunter-Killer Forces of the Atlantic Fleet.

After visiting ports in northern Europe during a midshipman cruise conducted in the summer of 1955, she resumed her training duties with the Fleet Sonar School and normal operations for another year. She joined another midshipman cruise, in July and August of 1956; this time to Panama and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. On 31 October 1956, Sturtevant entered the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard for conversion to a radar picket destroyer escort ship. The conversion process lasted until 5 October 1957, when she was recommissioned as DER–239. On 7 February 1958, she departed Philadelphia for the Pacific Ocean, calling at Newport, R.I.; San Juan, P.R.; Rodman in the Canal Zone; Acapulco, Mexico; and San Diego before arriving in Pearl Harbor on 18 March. Upon completion of further training in Hawaii, she became one of the original ships of the Pacific Early Warning Barrier. She continued to so serve in the Pacific Fleet until June of 1960, when she was placed out of commission and berthed with the San Diego Group of the Pacific Reserve Fleet. There she remained until the fall of 1972 when an inspection and survey board found her to be unfit for further naval service. Her name was struck from the Navy list on 1 December 1972; and, on 20 September 1973, her hulk was sold to the National Metal and Steel Corp., Terminal Island, Calif., for scrapping.
